“ I have so many fond memories of Chris growing up together on Bartlett Street in Harbor Beach, but here are some snippets: Air-guitaring with our tennis racquets on the sidewalk in the 70s while humming the disco instrumental tune, "A Fifth of Beethoven." Listening to Chris' Electric Light Orchestra album and other music of that era up in her room. Summertime sleep outs on the Draher house back yard under the stars, including seeing the awesome Aurora Borealis, likely in August. Sneaking out on our bikes from said sleep-outs (sorry Mony!), then being escorted back by the police who caught us after curfew! One summer we swam with innertubes out to the light house...my mother was furious when she found out!

Chris was the rare person that could actually make the French Horn sound good! When she played the sousaphone, she taught me how to play the baritone, so we could be in the brass section together. She also convinced me to join the pit band for school musicals. Though we both lived very near the school, Chris would pick me up in her car so we could cruise around town in the mornings before school. She was so hilarious with an infectious smile and laugh. Her down to earth nature made her adept at keeping my proclivity for snootiness in check.

So sorry for this loss. Sending love and virtual hugs to the family.

“ If you lit a candle, knowing Chrissy D it should be a bonfire. Many in the Middleville back yard laughs. Watching her kids with my kids growing up in the early years. Camping at dukes. She always made the best of it by laughing. May she rest in peace

“ When Chris and her family moved in next door over 20 years ago, it was an amazing relationship. Her laugh was contagious and friendship was beyond. Or children grew up together, sleepovers, kids choice dinners every Tuesday was a hit with my girls. The kids putting on plays, New Years Eve celebrations, camping adventures and spending all summer at the "Pond" swimming and fishing. Chris you will be deeply missed.

“ Chris had such an infectious laugh, she would laugh and she sounded just like her dad❤️, the last time I seen her she came over to my mom n dads and us kids would reminisce about the good ole days and just laugh at some of the things that we did back then!! She will always be in our hearts and we have our great memories of the good ole days of being neighbors. You and your laugh will be always missed, but we know that you are with your dad and are just smiling and laughing down at us❤️❤️ We will see you again one day, love and miss you Chris❤️❤️
