“ Stoch was a quiet guy and the first time I met him he was observing me until Barb and I started talking and laughing then he opened up and I or he would always say something that would always get us going. After the first visit we became great friends. There is only one thing that I will always remember about Stoch he was a guy to tease you. At Mallory's wedding we all stayed at a hotel that would shuttle us to and from the wedding, but I was having a issue with my foot and did the best I could to get around. At the wedding we ate and had the best time (Colleen and Don) stayed in the same room with me. I don't drink but you would of thought I did because when the bus came to take us to the hotel I could not get back in the van. I tried a couple of times and everyone was waiting for it was cold and snowing because it was New Year's day so Stoch as funny as he was said let e up there and he lifted up and put me in the van. It was so funny that we laughed for days. The next morning when we were packing to come home Stoch puts his two cents in and ask me if I needed help to get in my van to come home. I had many good times with Barb and Stoch I will never forget them. Love you Stoch you are in heaven now.

“ Prayers for his family. My childhood memory of us all at Grandma Morley's house. My dad would go buy Hershey bars for Ruby's boys he always said and we would drive up and he would give them to the boys. Maybe cause my dad had eight girls!
